NASA image of the Greenland Ice Sheet in 2016, about 10 miles east of Point 660, 19 miles east of Kangerlussuaq on the middle western coast, 30 miles south of the Arctic Circle. This area is seeing in excess of 30 vertical feet of melt per year in the lengthening summer season. The dark banding shows colder or wetter periods of ice accumulation where cold saw drier dustier times. Much of this dust is continental and much of it is also from the interior of Russian Siberia; a very dry and dusty place during colder drier times. The image is about five miles across. The biggest lake is about a third of a mile across.

The beach is gone in many places around the world. This is South Padre Island where some of the dunes have begun to erode during normal, non-storm conditions, with little natural or man-made subsidence.

*Climate Change is Everywhere Campaign
Screen Printed Climate Psychology*

Friends,

Global warming psychology can change the world and you can help. It starts with a special messaging t-shirt. Psychology takes it from there. Global warming psychology says that after 20 years of failure, we need to try something different. Facts alone cannot compete with the reverberation chamber set up by vested interests whose fossil fuels are arguably the most important thing in our advanced society today. We need to use psychology to subconsciously create familiarity with climate change in our minds.

Familiarity is key. We do not know how to behave with climate change. Our society has never experienced it before. The climate change counter movement has created doubt where none should exist. Doubt and unfamiliarity feedback upon one another and create apathy. To overcome these things, we need to experience climate change more often, and develop a familiarity with this topic that simply does not exist in our society. It's only pollution. Clean it up!

Unless we approach this challenge differently we are destined to repeat past mistakes. This is why the Climate Change Now Initiative is here; to do things differently so that we do not repeat mistakes of the past. This is a team effort and the more team players we have, the greater awareness will become. It's just a t-shirt, but its impacts, like climate change impacts being greater than projected, are outsized because of the way familiarity works in our brains.

Special Vintage Series – Faded, Vintage T-shirts: We are particularly fond of this new series of pre worn art combined with a pre faded tee. An ancient looking climate messaging shirt sends a subliminal message. It's far beyond the time that we should have implemented action.

And remember, your purchase is 100 percent nonprofit. Every penny goes to support Climate Change Now's nonprofit outreach efforts. You can see over 400 of our reports on the most recent and critical scientific literature, enjoy our experimental rockumentary films, hear our music, and see the incredible beauty that remains on our glorious planet even in the face of massive climate change impacts; all at our base camp: ClimateDiscovery.org

Wear your message proudly,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Bruce Melton". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Bruce" being larger and more prominent than the last name "Melton".

THE ART

The best messages invoke thought. It's not the message alone though, an image can provoke thought too. The challenge in global warming psychology is to get us to think about climate change more, and to get us to think more often.

This psychology tells us we have to become more familiar with what climate change actually is. Our advanced civilization has never encountered climate change of this magnitude. We do not know how to behave.

Because behavior is shaped by past experiences, unknowns dominate our thoughts about climate change. Unknowns create doubt, paranoia and fear. Combined, apathy, inaction or self enforced ignorance result.

It's not that we need to know more about climate science, we need to know what climate change is. We need to know that it impacts everything around us, slowly, badly, irreversibly, uncontrollably, everything, already, nonlinearly, fundamentally.

Thoughtful messages get us to think more. More exposure (as in more T-shirts) get us to think more often. More neurons activating creates greater familiarity in our minds, which diminishes doubt, fear, paranoia and inaction.

Once we realize that climate change is everywhere, that it is everything, we will develop the capacity to think more deeply about the science. This deeper thought allows greater action to occur.

ORDERING INSTRUCTIONS

MINIMUM ORDER 36: 1 TYPE OF APPAREL, ANY COLOR OR SIZE, SAME HEADLINE, ART AND MESSAGE

- 1) Use attached pdf or Excel order form, or call, email, etc. (Excel File)
- 2) Choose shirt type and color from the spec sheets.
- 3) List sizes and quantity: "s,m,l,xl" and "9,9,9,9." This will get you 9 shirts each of small, medium, large, and extra-large.
- 4) Chose cost per shirt from table on order form based on screen print colors and type of shirt.
- 5) "One Color" and "Two Colors"? This is the number of screen print colors in the art. "One Color" is all black or all white art. "Two Colors" is for black and white art.
- 6) Headline? This is what goes at the top of your shirt: Jackson, Yellowstone, Park City, Padre Island, etc. No Headline? Fill in "None."
- 7) Art? See high resolution art here: Standard or Vintage.
- 8) Message? This is the "Climate Change is Everywhere Campaign," so default to this message if you have no preference. It has unique importance in global warming psychology. Or try these here or choose your own.
- 9) Notes (not shown, bottom of order form): Want a special font? Split an order with another shop? Got a deadline? Something special? Let us know.

Email your order (or text a photo of your order form,) with the SUBJECT LINE: CLIMATE CHANGE T-SHIRTS ORDER to Bruce@ClimateChangeTshirts.org, or mail it to the address on the form, or call 512 799-7998.

Completing Your Order: We will send you a digital mock up of your order to proof, then we approve via email, then, pay through PayPal or PayPal's "no account Visa or Mastercard option," send a check, or make arrangements with us for payment. We will purchase your blank shirts and send them to the screen printer for direct shipment to you in a few weeks.

Doing Something About the Weather

Climate Change T-Shirts

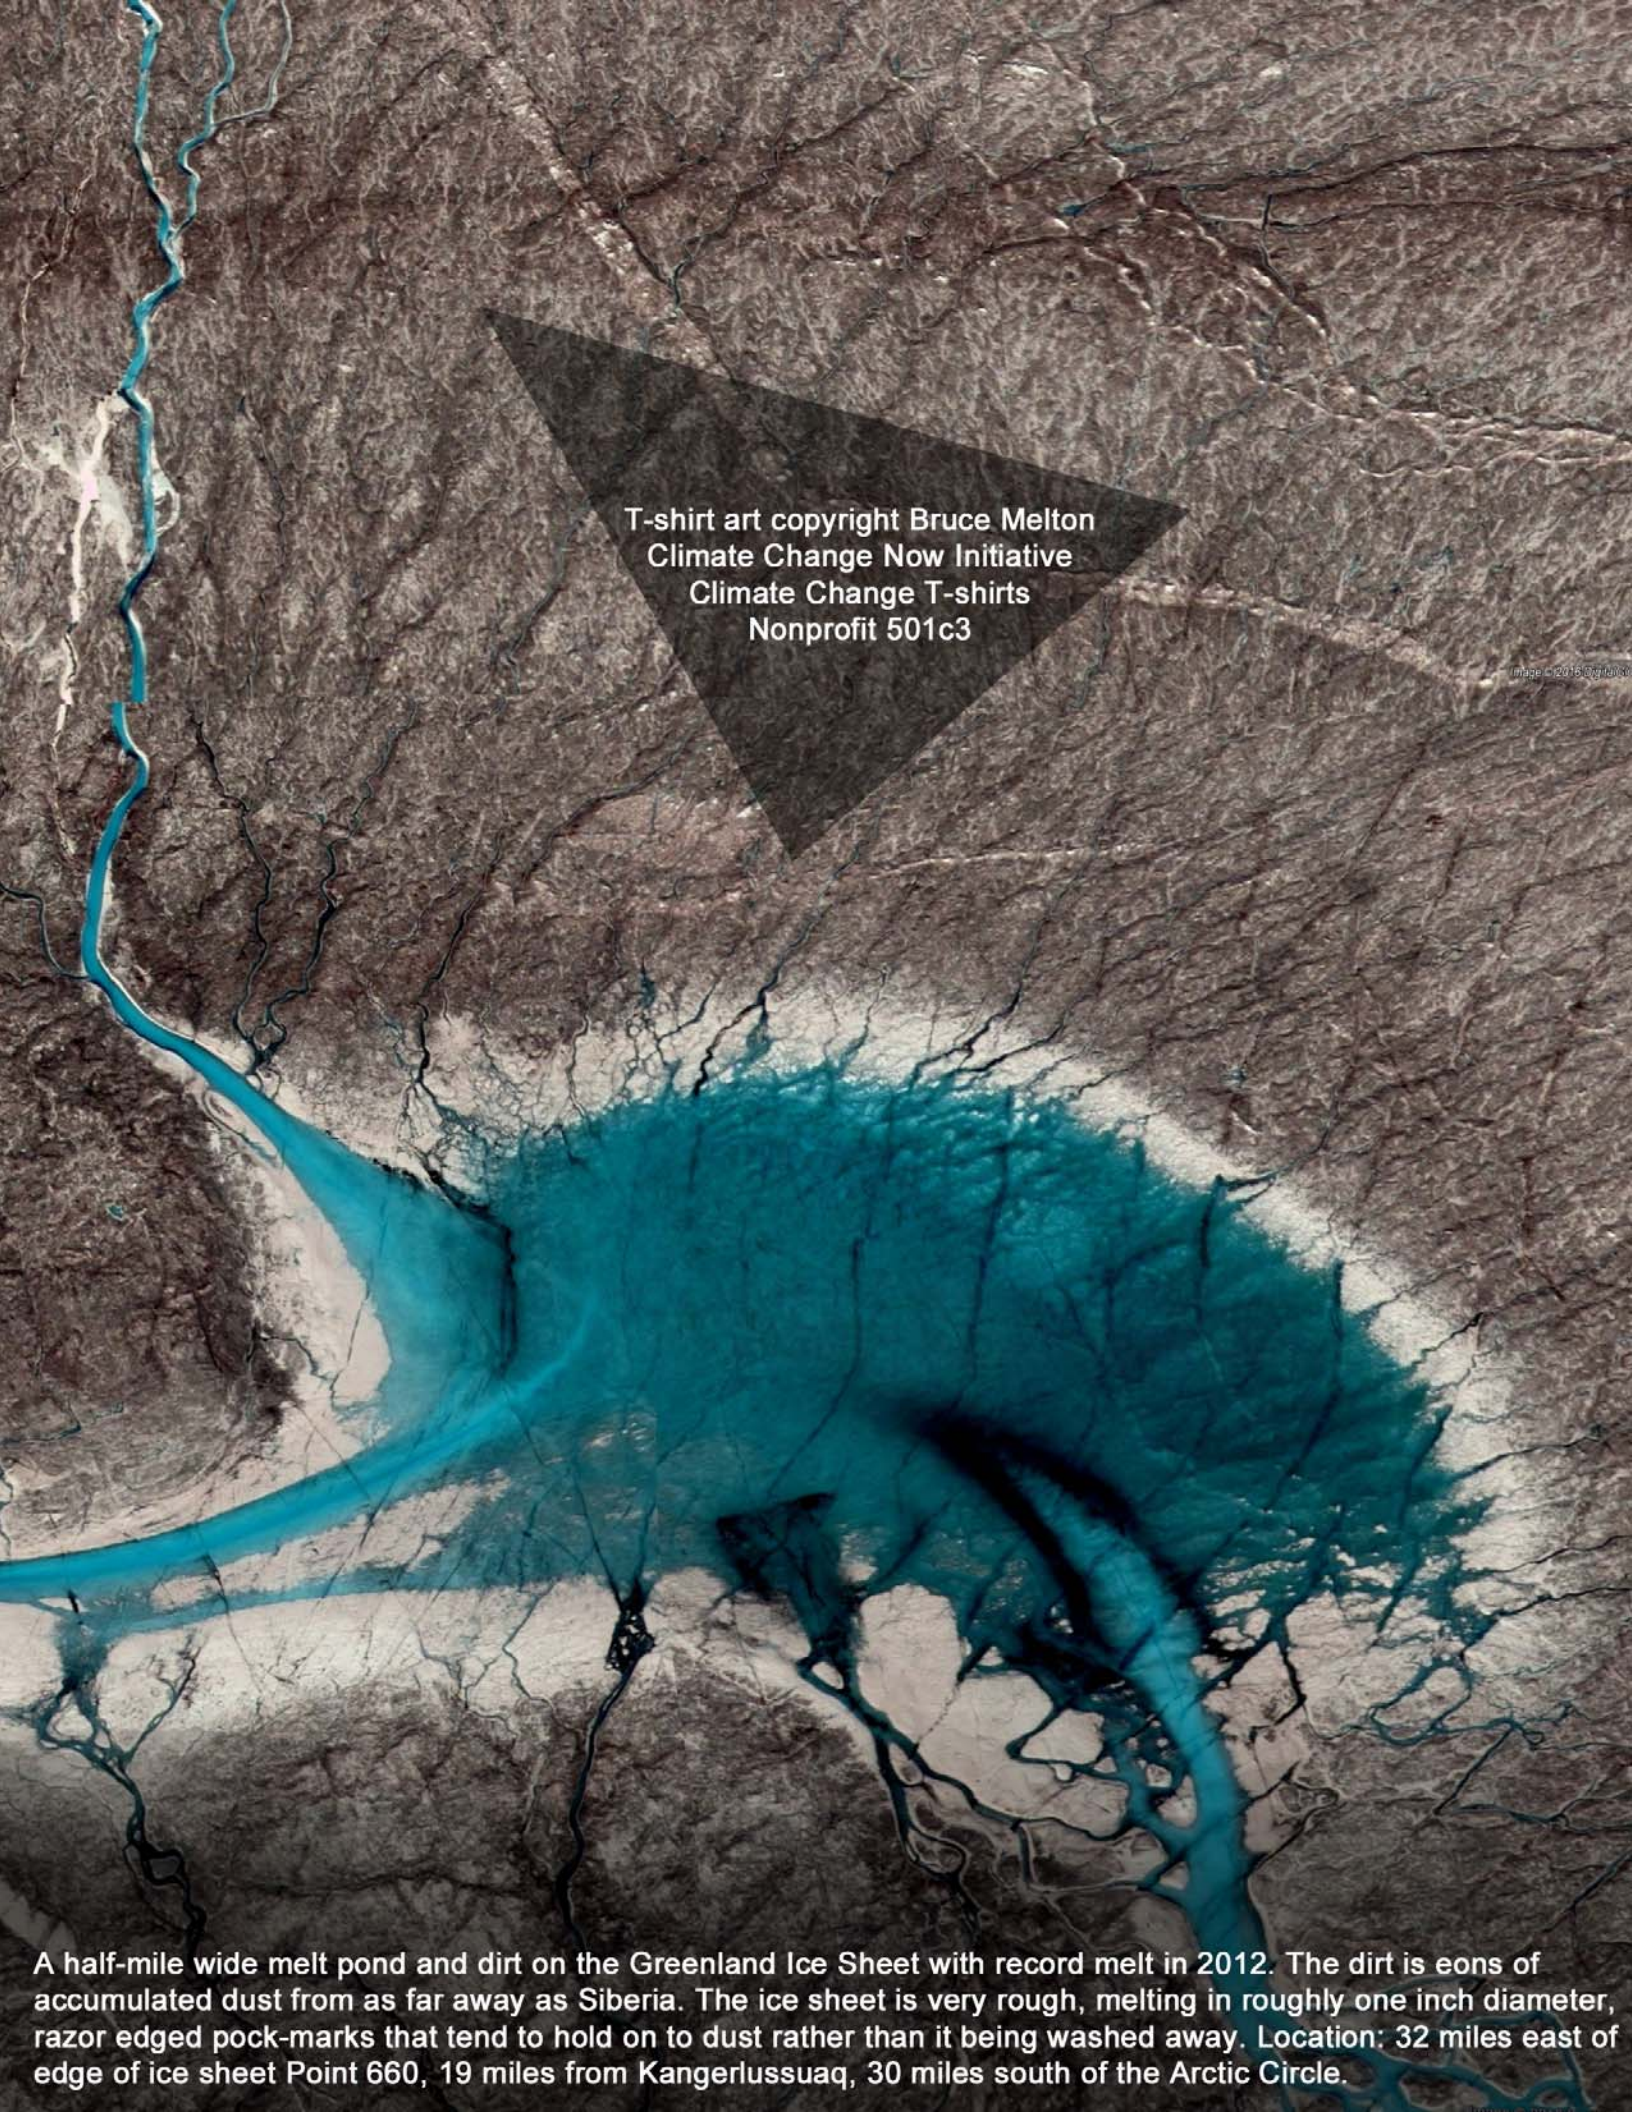

Nonprofit T-shirts for Climate Change

From the 89 million acre pine beetle pandemic in Western North America, to the melting Greenland Ice Sheet, and sea level rise erosion on Padre Island on the Texas coast, the Climate Change Now Initiative and Climate Change T-shirts brings you the latest and most important climate science discoveries.

100% of the profit from this t-shirt goes to support the Climate Change Now Initiative (nonprofit 501c3.) By purchasing this messaging product you are making a direct contribution to public outreach on the latest and most important discoveries in climate science. Visit our website to see our reporting, films, and music. And remember; the solutions are much easier than is commonly portrayed in the media. Wear your message proudly.

A half-mile wide melt pond and dirt on the Greenland Ice Sheet with record melt in 2012. The dirt is eons of accumulated dust from as far away as Siberia. The ice sheet is very rough, melting in roughly one inch diameter, razor edged pock-marks that tend to hold on to dust rather than it being washed away. Location: 32 miles east of edge of ice sheet Point 660, 19 miles from Kangerlussuaq, 30 miles south of the Arctic Circle.
